Jonathan has considerable experience within programme and project management gained from the engineering and construction sectors and in a variety of PM roles from contractor, contracting manager, client manager and client sponsor.

Jonathan has been a Member of the Institution of Royal Engineers (MInstRE) since 1980.

A civil engineer by primary discipline with a military background from the Royal Engineers. He has the flexibility and skills to initiate and manage multi-disciplinary complex projects across a range of infrastructure. Experience includes rail, road, water and waste-water treatment, marine and latterly programmes comprising primarily rail infrastructure and associated operational power.

He has the proven ability to lead and build teams, and to manage and deliver through all phase of the project life cycle from conception through to bringing into service in demanding compliance and assurance sectors.

Jonathan is married with a grown-up family. He has an interest and love of wine and the more he learns has soon realised how little he knows.

Having experienced much of the world at a young age and worked in a variety of locations, he has not lost the desire to travel, to see more and experience life with its rich variety and history.
